General Conference Information

Conference Venues

To enhance the visibility and impact of our conference, we have chosen to host it across three significant venues in Padova—the San Gaetano Cultural Center, the Beato Pellegrino Complex, and the Capitanio Palace. The first is one of the vibrant centers of the city's cultural life and belongs to the municipality, while the other two belong to the university. This approach integrates the conference into the city's fabric, raising awareness of the emergent field of Contemplative Studies among the public and university community. Moreover, it provides attendees with the opportunity to experience Padova's rich cultural and historical heritage firsthand.

Centro Culturale Altinate San Gaetano THE SAN GAETANO CULTURAL CENTER

Via Altinate, 71, 35121 Padova PD, Italy

Located in the heart of Padova, the San Gaetano Cultural Center is one of the city's premier public spaces. The historic building housing the center, San Gaetano Palace, was originally a convent built in the 16th century for the Order of the Regular Theatine Clerics. Designed by the renowned architect Vincenzo Scamozzi, who also completed many of Andrea Palladio's unfinished projects, the convent and the adjacent Church of San Gaetano showcase his architectural prowess. The Municipality of Padova purchased it in 1874. In the post-war period, the former convent was renovated to become the City Courthouse, which operated until 1995. A major renovation in 2008 transformed the building into a stunning edifice where Scamozzi's classical designs blend seamlessly with modern steel and tempered glass. This redesign earned the complex the nickname "The Padovan Beaubourg," a reference to the Parisian Centre Pompidou. The center has a versatile covered plaza, also known as the "city's living room." The opening ceremony on June 19 and the plenary sessions on June 20-21 will be hosted here. Concurrent sessions will take place in various rooms, including the Auditorium and the beautiful Teatini Hall in the adjacent San Gaetano Church..

Polo Beato Pellegrino

THE BEATO PELLEGRINO COMPLEX

Via Beato Pellegrino, 28, 35137 Padova PD, Italy

Inaugurated in 2019, the Beato Pellegrino Complex previously housed a geriatric hospital and now is dedicated to educational excellence. Designed with sustainability in mind, the complex features open spaces and cloisters that promote social interaction among students and scholars of the Humanistic Centre. The complex masterfully combines historical elements, such as the two cloisters, with modern solutions like the covered gallery overlooking the teaching rooms. As the first gas-free building of the University of Padova, it incorporates thermal-acoustic insulation, solar panel shading, and renewable energy systems using geothermal probes and photovoltaic panels.

Palazzo Del Capitanio

THE CAPITANIO PALACE

Piazza Capitaniato, 3, 35139 Padova PD, Italy

The Capitanio Palace is a remarkable 14th-century palace situated in the historic center of Padova. It served as the residence and administrative headquarters for the Capitanio, the highest authority representing the Republic of Venice in the city. Built on the site of the former Da Carrara Palace, the palace features an ancient tower. Renovations began as early as 1426, with the installation of the Clock in 1427. The Hall of Giants, the jewel of the complex, is splendidly frescoed and has always been connected to the life of the university. For our conference, we will be using both the Hall of Giants and another historic room, the frescoed Hall of Niches.

Registration – What's Included?

Access to four days of exciting content including:

- ☐ invited speaker talks;
- ☐ invited speaker panels;
- ☐ individual and panel presentations;
- ☐ dedicated poster sessions;
- ☐ contemplative practices;
- ☐ social events (see the program for updates);
- ☐ post-conference workshops

Networking opportunities with likeminded people and leading contemplative researchers.

Name Badges

Your name badge is your admission ticket to the conference sessions, coffee breaks, poster sessions and reception. Please wear it at all times. At the end of the Conference, we ask that you recycle your name badge in one of the name badge recycling stations that will be set out or leave it at the Registration Desk.

Keynote Speakers

Bret Davis, Loyola University, Maryland

Bret W. Davis is Professor and Higgins Chair in Philosophy at Loyola University Maryland, USA. In addition to attaining a Ph.D. in philosophy at Vanderbilt University, he lived for more than a dozen years in Japan, where he studied Buddhism and modern Japanese philosophy while practicing Rinzai Zen. He was authorized to teach Zen by Kobayashi Gentoku Rōshi, abbot of Shōkokūji monastery in Kyoto. His recent publications include Real Zen for Real Life (Great Courses), The Oxford Handbook of Japanese Philosophy (Oxford University Press), and Zen Pathways: An Introduction to the Philosophy and Practice of Zen Buddhism (Oxford University Press).

Marcello Ghilardi, University of Padova

Marcello Ghilardi, PhD, is Associate Professor of Aesthetics and of Philosophy of Interculturality at the University of Padova, where he is also vice-director of the Master program in Contemplative Studies and member of the research groups HermAes (Hermeneutics and Aesthetics) and Mushin'en (on Intercultural Philosophy). Among his books: Filosofia dell'interculturalità (2012); Il vuoto, le forme, l'altro (2014); The Line of the Arch. Intercultural Issues between Aesthetics and Ethics (2015); The Bloomsbury Research Book on Chinese Aesthetics and Philosophy of Art (with H.-G. Moeller, 2021).

Anne Klein, Rice University

Anne Carolyn Klein/Rigzin Drolma, is Professor and a former Chair of the Department of Religion, Rice University, where she helped developed a contemplative studies concentration for graduate students. Co-founder of the Dawn Mountain Center for Tibetan Buddhism. She is a Lama in the Nyingma (ancient) Buddhist tradition. Her central thematic interest is the embodied interaction between head and heart across a spectrum of Buddhist theories of cognitive and somatic knowing. She participates also in the emerging field of micro-phenomenology where the juxtaposition of philosophical, scientific, and experiential research promises a fresh way of bridging traditional and contemporary cultures' ways of knowing.

Olga Klimecki, Technische Universität Dresden

Olga Klimecki, PhD, is a neuroscientist and psychologist. She is privatdocent in Psychology at the University of Jena and will temporarily hold the chair of Biological Psychology at the Technische Universität Dresden from April 2024. Her research focuses on the promotion of mental and physical health, as well as the peaceful resolution of conflicts through meditation-based intervention. Olga (co-) authored over 80 publications and has received several grants and awards. She is co-principal investigator of the longest meditation study to date – the Medit-Ageing / Silver Santé study. Olga also teaches mindfulness meditation in institutions and corporations around the world.

Rhonda Magee, University of San Francisco School of Law

Professor Rhonda V. Magee is a teacher of mindfulness-based stress reduction interventions for lawyers, law students, and for minimizing social-identity-based bias. A full-time faculty member at University of San Francisco since 1998, and a full professor since 2004, she has been named Dean's Circle Research Scholar, served as co-director of the University's Center for Teaching Excellence, and co-facilitator of the Ignatian Faculty Forum faculty development program. She teaches Torts; Race, Law and Policy; and courses in Contemplative and Mindful Law and Law Practice.

Josipa Mihic, University of Zagreb

Josipa Mihić is an associate professor at the Department of Behavioral Disorders at the Faculty of Education and Rehabilitation Sciences, University of Zagreb. She is a co-founder of the Laboratory for Prevention Research (PrevLab) within which she researches risk behaviors, emotional and social competencies in children and youth, the effect of contemplative education and mindfulness practice on mental health and positive development, and the role of self-compassion and compassion in preventing behavioral problems and promoting mental health. She is a trained Gestalt psychotherapist and a co-founder of a MiniMindfulness learning platform.

Claire Petitmengin, Emeritus Professor Institut Mines-Telecom Business School

Claire Petitmengin's research focuses on the usually unrecognized dynamics of lived experience and "micro-phenomenological" methods enabling us to become aware of it and highlight its essential structures. She studies the epistemological conditions of these methods, as well as their educational, therapeutic, artistic and contemplative applications. She is currently especially interested in the links between the ecological crisis and our blindness to our lived experience.

Sarah Shaw, Oxford University

Sarah Shaw is a Part-time lecturer for the Oxford University Department of Continuing Education, and a Faculty Member of the Oriental Institute.

Her research interests include:

- ☐ Early Buddhist (Pāli) suttas and Abhidhamma material on meditation
- ☐ Early Buddhist narrative: literary features of Jātakas and Dhammapada stories
- ☐ Indian and Asian influences on British nineteenth-century writers
- ☐ Modern South and Southeast Asian Buddhist ritual, chant and meditation

• Christian Suhr, Aarhus University •

Christian Suhr is a filmmaker and professor of visual and multimodal anthropology at Aarhus University. He is the PI of the ERC project: "Heart Openings: The Experience and Cultivation of Love in Buddhism, Christianity, and Islam" (2021-26). His recent film Light upon light (Suhr and Lotfy 2022) explores religious experiences of luminosity and love

- in post-revolutionary Egypt. He is also the author of the award-winning film and book Descending with angels (Manchester University Press 2019) about jinn possession, Islamic exorcism, and psychiatry. Suhr's edited work includes the books Transcultural montage (Berghahn 2013) and When the media sets the agenda (DJØF 2021).

• Franz Vollenweider, University of Zürich •

Franz X. Vollenweider is Co-Director of the Center for Psychiatric Research, Director of the Neuropsychopharmacology and Brain Imaging Unit, and Professor of Psychiatry in the School of Medicine, University of Zurich. He is also the Director of the Heffter Research Center Zurich for Consciousness Studies (HRC-ZH), which he founded in 1998 and

- incorporated in his research group. His research interest is focused on the neuronal basis of affective and psychotic disorders as well as the foundations of psychedelic and non-psychedelic-induced altered mental states using concepts from cognitive neuroscience and systems biology (PET, fMRT/EE, MRS, ERP; TMS-EEG).

• Shirley Telles, Patanjali Research Foundation •

Shirley Telles, MBBS, PhD, is a research consultant at Patanjali Research Foundation, Haridwar, India, where she studies the physiological effects of yoga, especially yoga breathing, and higher states of consciousness induced by meditation. She has over 200 research articles indexed in bibliographic databases and authored seven books. In the course

Our music is oriented towards adopting an ethical attitude for "deep" listening in the continually flowing present moment. "Deep listening" is a concept and practice inspired by Pauline Oliveros. It is an immersive experience, rather like a sound meditation. This "deep" attitude towards sound, which allows us to focus on musical ideas through repetitions and improvisational variations, has been the foundation for many important contemporary composers, including John Cage, Giacinto Scelsi, Cornelius Cardew, Philip Glass, Terry Riley, and Steve Reich. In our performance we adopt this immersive attitude towards sound and music, which enables us to improvise free from tonal and rhythmic prescriptions. Workshop Description

Please join us for a preconference on Reimagining Contemplative Education at this pivotal moment in history when the opportunities for developing a common scholarly language, building community, engaging in collaborative research and practice, and networking within and across different educational settings in relation to Contemplative Education seem genuinely limited. These challenges can be seen as opportunities for renewal, and we see this as a critically important time to reimagine what Contemplative Education could be as a field of scholarly study and practice.

The goal of this preconference is to realize the opportunity for renewal that is at hand by spending time together: (a) determining the range of interests, expertise, and research within our broadly defined field; (b) discussing and defining what we mean by "Contemplative Education;" (c) experiencing contemplative practice together; (d) starting to build community; and (e) planning for future meetings in terms of a newly formed collaborative network.

What is Contemplative Education and what is its relevance during this time of global change and the movement towards AI? What are the best pedagogical approaches and desired outcomes of Contemplative Education? What educator qualifications are needed? What theories can guide research and practice in this regard, and what does research regarding Contemplative Education say currently about this endeavor? Finally, what opportunities and barriers exist currently regarding the introduction of contemplative practices in schools and higher education settings, and how can we better organize ourselves to collectively take advantage of such opportunities and overcome barriers? In this preconference, we will engage with these issues in a dialogic and collaborative way as a means of beginning to form a new network around Contemplative Education. We hope you will join us.

Doris Chang, New York University

Kamilah Majied, California State University, Monterey Bay

Lindsay E. Romano, New York University

Workshop Description

With special thanks to the following members of the REACH committee, who provided valuable input in the development of this preconference workshop: Blake Colaianne, Eve Ekman, Kamilah Majied, Alem Makonnen, Clayton McClintock, Nicole Nicotera, Alberto López Pulido, Zev Schuman-Olivier, Maura Tennor, and Lisa Udel

13:00 – 13:50 PROGRAM 1: *Reflective Inclusive Imagining: Insight and Liberation in Contemplative Scholarship and Research

Speakers:

Kamilah Majied (chair), Alem Makonnen, Laura Candiotta

Given that contemplative practices center being fully present in our embodied, cognitive, and affective experience while being aware of how our sociocultural experience is interacting with the moment, this session is an invitation to reflective inquiry regarding how privilege limits awareness and how each of us has biases that inform the expression and scope of our scholarship. This framing session aims to discuss and activate participants' capacity to envision how their conceptualizations of the humanities, natural sciences, education, and clinical science, could be more inclusive.

14:00 – 14:50 PROGRAM 2: *Advancing Liberatory Methods in Contemplative Research and Scholarship: An Interdisciplinary Panel and Community Conversation

Speakers:

Doris F. Chang (Chair), Rhonda Magee, Fadel Zeidan, Lindsay Romano, Cheryl Woods-Giscombé

An interdisciplinary panel of scholars from across the humanities, education, clinical sciences, neuroscience, and other disciplines will discuss antiracist and liberatory approaches to building an inclusive, contextualized, and rigorous field of contemplative research and scholarship. The goal of this panel and community conversation is to share formal principles and best practices to promote contemplative research in partnership with, and benefiting the most vulnerable members of society.

14:50 – 15:10 AFTERNOON BREAK

15:10 – 16:00 PROGRAM 3: Community Participatory Contemplative Research: Applications Across Diverse Settings and Contexts

Speakers:

Lindsay Romano (Chair), Alberto López Pulido, Doris Chang

In this third program, we highlight how community participatory methods can enhance contemplative science and scholarship. Three scholars will share specific examples of participatory research involving different methods (ethnography, qualitative research, mixed-methods experiment), academic disciplines (ethnic studies, psychology, education) and social contexts.

16:10 – 16:30 COMMUNITY REFLECTIONS AND CONVERSATION

Post-Conference Workshops

June 23, 2024

15:00 – 16:15 Anthropology of and from the heart

Chair:

Christian Suhr, Aarhus University

Workshop Description

Attending to the heart is not easy but it might be useful and perhaps necessary in order to understand and counteract some of the tensions, the indifference, and the intercultural misunderstandings that characterize our contemporary world. Is it possible to give the qualities of the heart more space in research and teaching, in scientific criticism, and in our engagement with the communities and environments in which we live and work? Can the bodily, emotional, and spiritual heart be both an object of enquiry and a starting point for research? In this talk I introduce audiovisual, multimodal, and microphenomenological methods that I believe can help us to address these questions by deepening our understanding of the role of the senses, the body, and emotions in human life. I also invite for a short auto-elicitation exercise and present examples from ongoing research on the ways in which practitioners in Buddhist, Christian, and Muslim traditions relate to the heart and how in different ways they experience and seek to cultivate love in their lives. Taking inspiration from the exercise and these examples I hope to engage the audience in a discussion about what an anthropology of and from the heart would look like.

15:00 – 16:15 Measurement issues in contemplative science

Co-Chairs:

David Vago, Virginia University

Marieke van Vugt, University of Groningen

Workshop Description

Subjectively, people tend to feel engaging in a contemplative practice has a huge effect on them. However, objective evidence for such effects is often lagging behind. In this workshop, we will discuss suitable outcome measures to quantify the effect of contemplative practices. We will discuss tasks, paradigms, psychological and biological measures that may show the most promise. In tandem, we will discuss what the target psychological constructs are for a variety of contemplative practices. We hope to end with an outcomes measure registry that includes a repository of target tasks and measures that can then be used across labs to build a more solid base of evidence.

15:00 – 16:15 Frontiers in Contemplative Education: Where do we go from here?

Co-Chairs:

Chiara Mascarello, University of Padua; Ca' Foscari University of Venice

Josipa Mihić, University of Zagreb

Robert W. Roeser, Pennsylvania State University

Harold D. Roth, Brown University

Workshop Description

Following the ISCR Meeting 2024, we will hold a 90-minute post-conference session aimed at (a) evaluating insights and experiences around frontiers in Contemplative Education explored at the conference; (b) planning for future activities and gatherings to continue the momentum around these frontiers and the more general task of reimagining Contemplative Education going forward; and (c) establishing a mentorship network that supports the creation and development of educational programs in Contemplative Studies. We warmly welcome you and encourage you to attend this post-conference reflection and planning meeting.

16:45 – 18:00 "The Elephant in the Room" – Do Contemplative researchers need their own contemplative practice?

Chairs:

Harold D. Roth, Brown University

Marieke van Vugt, University of Groningen

Workshop Description

The field of contemplative research has many unresolved issues, no doubt. But the one that makes us the most uncomfortable is the question of should a contemplative researcher, scholar, or educator have a personal contemplative practice in order to be able to competently work in their particular area? Or is it better to completely abjure any personal practice in order to do the most objective work? At issue here is the question of whether or not bringing in a subjective perspective in any way actually informs or biases our own research. Directly related to this is the issue of whether any research is truly objective. Finally, how does this question pertain to contemplative educators? To what extent should we ourselves have our own contemplative practice in order to be responsible teachers in the primary, secondary, and post-secondary classroom. And if we are educational researchers, to what extent is our work improved or biased by our own personal practice?

16:45 – 18:00 Contemplative Practices in Liberatory Mentorship and Leadership

Co-Chairs:

Doris F. Chang, New York University Silver School

Cheryl Woods Giscombé, University of North Carolina School of Nursing

Ram Mahalingam, University of Michigan

Kamilah Majied, California State University, Monterey Bay

Felipe Mercado, California State University, Fresno

Workshop Description

This session offers guidance and inspiration for enriching your approach to mentoring with contemplative approaches as well as best practices for developing more effective mentorship programs. We will discuss how we developed a nonhierarchical mentorship paradigm wherein both mentors and mentees grow and learn. We will demonstrate how mentorship grounded in contemplative practices can deepen inquiry and insight in research, clinical practice, teaching, and other scholarly activities. We will demonstrate how to center the development and leadership of Global Majority (aka BIPOC) scholars, clinicians, educators, and researchers towards the advancement of all scholars and institutions. This model challenges the status quo by building an inclusive educational culture that nurtures individual development and professional success, interpersonal holistic growth, and institutional equity. Our vision of successful mentorship is not just about navigating present challenges but reimagining what mentor-mentee relationships can achieve in the rich tapestry of global academic communities.

Participants in this session will learn:

- ☐ How contemplative practice can be incorporated into mentorship
- ☐ How to effectively mentor and be mentored by Black, Latinx, Indigenous, Arab and Asian scholars
- ☐ How to engage contemplative practices in eliminating racism, ableism, Islamophobia and other inequities in higher education and the academy.

16:45 – 18:00 Integrating contemplative practices with psychedelic-assisted psychotherapy research: Methodology, best practices, and ethics

Co-Chairs:

Aviva Berkovich-Ohana & Yair Dor-Ziderman, University of Haifa

Rael Cahn, University of Southern California

Linda E. Carlson, University of Calgary

Franz Vollenweider, University of Zurich

Workshop Description

Presenters in this workshop will briefly review research highlights of the current renaissance of psychedelic-assisted therapy for treating conditions such as treatment-resistant major depression, substance abuse disorders, trauma and existential anxiety, and potential neural and psychosocial mechanisms of action. They will consider efforts within these realms to incorporate mindfulness and other contemplative training into preparation and integration components of the therapy. The bulk of the workshop will be devoted to informal interactive discussion of issues regarding research methodology and best practices, and ethical considerations in psychedelic assisted therapy more generally.

Music by Terry Riley, Philip Glass; Improvisations.

Our music is oriented towards adopting an ethical attitude for “deep” listening in the continually flowing present moment. “Deep listening” is a concept and practice inspired by Pauline Oliveros. It is an immersive experience, rather like a sound meditation. This “deep” attitude towards sound, which allows us to focus on musical ideas through repetitions and improvisational variations, has been the foundation for many important contemporary composers, including John Cage, Giacinto Scelsi, Cornelius Cardew, Philip Glass, Terry Riley, and Steve Reich. In our performance we adopt this immersive attitude towards sound and music, which enables us to improvise free from tonal and rhythmic prescriptions. We listen to the sound that resonates in the internal, intimate memory of our own musical experience, remaining awake to the music, the improvisations of the other musicians, the resonance of the audience’s response, and the sound of the environment. This is how we produce unexpected music in which everyone is free to express themselves and become themselves, being responsible for the collective result.
